Mr. James Phillips
Executive Vice President of Sales & Marketing

Wrapbotics, Inc. ("Wrapbotics") and the above Company and/or its legal subsidiaries ("Company"), (collectively, the "Parties") agree as follows:

1. Each party may have developed or acquired creative, technical, economic, and business information (the "Information").
2. Wrapbotics, Inc. or Company may, in each party's own discretion, provide to the other party access to that portion of the Information that may be useful to the other party for the purpose(s) of evaluating each party's interest in entering into an agreement whereby Company provides Wrapbotics with (electronic or otherwise) engineering design, blueprints, drawings or manufacturing related services.
3. Each of the Parties recognizes and acknowledges the competitive value and proprietary and confidential nature of the Information (as defined below) disclosed by one Party (the "Disclosing Party") to the other Party (the "Receiving Party") and the damage or loss that could result to the Disclosing Party if any Information it disclosed to the Receiving Party is used by the Receiving Party or the Receiving Party's Representatives (as defined below) for any purpose other than in connection with the Receiving Party's evaluation, negotiation and consummation of proposed product development, engineering or design, or the business aspects thereof.
4. The term "Information" means all information relating in any way to a potential Wrapbotics' idea, or product(s) in developmental stage in any form or medium, including, but not limited to, proprietary and confidential information, ideas, techniques, inventions, know-how, processes, communications and data, business information, marketing plans, technical or financial information, customer or membership lists, business or financial proposals and projections, sketches, models, samples, computer programs and documentation, business models, drawings and specifications provided on or after the date hereof. The term "Representatives" means each Party's affiliates and such Party's and its affiliates' respective directors, officers, partners, owners, members, managers, employees, agents, service providers, consultants, advisors and other representatives (including, without limitation, actual or potential investors or lenders, financial advisors, legal counsel and accountants), and the term "person" shall include any corporation, company, partnership, limited liability company, trust, governmental entity or Company.
5. Each party shall maintain as confidential all Information of the other party which is made available to the other party whether or not it is marked as "Confidential", or if provided in verbal form, is identified at the time of disclosure as confidential and which is followed by a writing identifying the disclosure as confidential within ten (10) days of the date of disclosure.

6. Neither party shall use the other party's Confidential Information, except for the purpose(s) stated herein, and shall not disclose Confidential Information to any third party, other than that party's agents, unless the prior written approval of the provider of the Confidential Information is received. Each party agrees not to attempt to reverse engineer any Confidential Information of the other party.
7. Each party shall restrict access to the other party's Information to its agents or employees who have been identified by the party receiving the Information as requiring access to the Information to accomplish the purpose(s) stated herein.
8. Should either party at any time be requested to do so, that party shall return to the other party the received Information and all other written information, models, drawings, photos, data, samples, and the like, which the recipient may have received relating to the Information and all copies of the same or any portions thereof. Each party may keep one copy of the other party's Confidential Information for its records. The obligations of confidence under this Agreement shall survive termination of this Agreement. Further, the obligations for a particular Confidential Information shall cease ten (10) years after the date of disclosure of that Confidential Information.
9. Except as permitted hereunder, nothing contained herein shall in any way restrict or impair either party's right to use or disclose the other party's Information which: (a) is known to the public other than by breach of this Agreement; (b) is in the party's possession prior to the time of the disclosure to the other party and was not acquired, directly or indirectly, from the other party; (c) is made available by a third party who has the legal right to do so; (d) is independently developed by the party without access or reference to the other party's Information; or (e) is disclosed under operation of law, except that the party will disclose only such information as is legally required and will use reasonable efforts to obtain confidential treatment for any Information that is so disclosed.
10. This Agreement shall remain in effect until it is terminated by either Party with thirty (30) days prior written notice. The terms and conditions of this Agreement shall survive any such termination with respect to Confidential Information that is disclosed prior to the effective date of termination. The Parties receiving Confidential Information (each, a "Recipient") from the other Parties disclosing Confidential Information (each, a "Discloser") will use the Confidential Information only for the purpose of and in connection with the parties' business relationship.
11. The terms of this Agreement shall not be construed to give either party a license under any patent (pending or otherwise granted), trademark, software, trade-secret, know-how, copyright, technical data, technology, process or Confidential Information belonging to the other party.
12. A waiver of a breach of this Agreement shall not constitute a waiver as to any further breach. This Agreement shall be interpreted according to Florida State law, excluding its choice of law provisions. All proceedings arising hereunder shall be litigated in courts situated in a court of competent jurisdiction in the State of Florida, United States of America; each party consents to jurisdiction and venue therein, hereby waiving any right to object to jurisdiction or venue.

THE PARTIES BELOW ACKNOWLEDGE THAT THEY HAVE READ, UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED TO THE TERMS OF THIS AGREEMENT.
